

Andreas I. Miaoudakis was born in Heraklion of Crete, Greece in 1973. He received his diploma degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Patras, Patras, Greece in 1996. In 1997 he joined the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering of the University of Patras, Patras, Greece, where he worked as a research engineer in the Laboratory of Applied Electronics. In 2004 he received his Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering from the University of Patras, Patras, Greece. Now he is a member of the Non-Ionizing Radiation Laboratory of Applied Informatics and Multimedia Department of Technological Educational Institute of Crete, Greece, and a scientific and research fellow of the same Department. His research interests include embedded systems, wireless communication, radio system design, RF Integrated circuit design, radio propagation, and non-ionizing electromagnetic radiation measurements.