

Prof Constantinos Nomicos received his BSc in Physics in 1966, the MSc in Electronics in 1969, and his PhD in 1971 from the University of Athens. He was lecturer at the Dept of Physics, University of Athens between 1966 -1982. Since 1982 he has been founding member of the VAN research group, introducing the VAN method for earthquake prediction. Prof Constantinos Nomicos has published more than 100 papers in international journals, 32 of which in the field of earthquake prediction and telemetry. Since 1995 he is a Professor at the Department of Electronics, School of Technological Applications, TEI of Athens, and has been Head of the Department since 2005.