

Gareth Owens (d.o.b 21-2-1964) studied (1982-1985) Classical Philology and Ancient History in the Department of Greek and Latin at University College London in London University, where he also gained a Masters in Greek Philology and Archaeology. Then (1986-1991) he gained an M.Phil with his Thesis “From Linear A to Linear B: A Diachronic Study of the Scripts of Late Minoan Crete” from the Department of Archaeology at University College London.

He remained there for one year (1991-1992) as Lecturer at the Institute of Classical Studies and at UCL, teaching Linear B, and he was awarded the “Ventris Award” for Mycenaean Studies.

From 1992-1994 he held a Post-Doctorate Position from the “Council of Europe” and the Hellenic State Scholarship Foundation, for “A Study of Minoan Linear A”, at the University of Crete and at the Archaeological Museum of Heraklion.

From 2001-2004 he carried out a Doctoral Dissertation with the title “A Provisional Approach to the Minoan Language”, in the Department of Linguistics at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. He is currently working as Erasmus+ Co-ordinator of the European Union Programme at the International Relations Office of the TEI of Crete and is, at the same Institution, Lecturer for Hellenic History and Language.

For the next 8 years (2008-2016) he is a Post-Doctoral Research Fellow in the Department of Linguistics at Athens University, in order to study the “Cretan Hieroglyphic” Inscriptions of the First Palace Period, including the Phaistos Disk.

Part of his recent research can be found at www.teicrete.gr/daidalika ‘From Linear B to the Phaistos Disk’ supported by the Pasiphae Research Lab of the TEI of Crete.
